XM WX Satellite Weather Provides Flexibility with End of Season Package

April 16, 2007, Lakeland Fla. - XM WX Satellite Weather offers subscribers an End of Season package that allows pilots with XM WX to put their subscription payments on hold during the off-season months. XM Satellite Radio maintains a firm commitment to providing customers with complete flexibility and exceptional customer service.

By switching to the XM WX End of Season package, current XM WX subscribers may maintain an active XM account while temporarily suspending their subscription fees for up to 12 months. While on the End of Season package, subscribers will have access to basic weather information - Surface Observations, City Forecasts and County Warnings - all at no cost and no activation or package change fee. The End of Season package may be used only once a year for a maximum length of 12 months. Once the need for the End of Season package is over, pilots simply call XM to select their desired service tier: Aviator Lite or Aviator.

XM WX Satellite Weather, the leading provider of cockpit weather information, provides pilots with an unrivaled assortment of high-resolution graphical weather products like High Resolution Radar, Echo Tops, Winds Aloft and Lightning directly to the cockpit.

XM's powerful satellites ensure pilots will not lose their weather data, regardless of treacherous weather conditions. XM WX is there for pilots when they need it most, in the cock-pit and at any altitude. XM WX Satellite Weather will be on display in the XM WX Satellite Weather booth (C24-25) at the Sun N Fun Fly-in April 17-23, 2007.
